Developing Intercultural Training Skills

A trainer training course leading to the LTS Certificate in Intercultural Training

About the course

Developing intercultural training skills is a five-day train the trainer course which has been held regularly at LTS in Bath and at locations abroad since January 2005. The course is designed for experienced trainers from fields such as business language training, communication skills training and management training, who wish to learn more about the theory and practice of intercultural training, both to integrate intercultural topics into their current training and also to deliver their own intercultural training courses. Exchange of experience with other participants is also a valuable part of the course.

Objectives and outcomes

By the end of the course, participants will:

- have a good understanding of the key conceptual frameworks of the intercultural field
- be able to define how cultural values influence attitude and behaviour
- be aware of how culture forms an integral part of international communication
- be able to incorporate intercultural elements into their own areas of training
- be familiar with the main types of intercultural training
- be able to design different types of intercultural training courses
- be familiar with training techniques, activities and materials for intercultural training
- know how to use different tools to evaluate the success of intercultural training

There will be some pre-course reading and tasks. All participants who complete the course successfully will receive the LTS Certificate in Intercultural Training.

Dates for the course in Bath in 2010 are:

18 - 22 January 22 - 26 March 21 - 25 June
20 - 24 September 29 November - 3 December
